Miss Weldt's Murder?

Miss Kahlert Says a Hoboken Man Loved the Dead Girl.

Julius Kahlert's Name Mentioned in the Mystery.

To the number of clues that may clear the mystery of Minnie Weldt's murder another very interesting one was added girl's former roommate.

was at that time suffering from tumor of the brain. He demanded that he be evidence that were regarded as hopeful yesterday have been discarded as use-ess to-day.

Miss Kahlert was taken again to the Yorkville Police Court from the East Sixty-seventh street station this morning, and once more remanded to the cus-tody of the police as a witness. She talked freely to an "Evening World" reporter while waiting her hearing. The police affect to believe that is a very shrewd customer, and is not telling the truth, but they can cite no instance in which they have caught her in a falsehood. Whatever she may be, she makes the impression of one try-ing to tell all she knows truthfully.

The point that she brought out that may contain the secret of a motive in tilling the girl affects a Hoboken saloonkeeper. Unfortunately, she does not know the name and address of the man, but refers for that information to a know the name and address of the man, but refers for that information to a Mrz. Hermann, who keeps a boarding-house for young ladies, as she says, on Twelfth stret, between First avenue and Avenue A.

"I know," said Miss Kahlert, "that about a year before I met her Minnie was acquainted with a saloon-keeper in Hoboken, who wanted to marry her very much. Minnie did not want him. He had a housekeeper at his home, a woman about thirty-five years old, who was very anxious to become his wife.

"Once Minnie went over there and met this housekeeper. They had a scene. The woman told Minnie that she knew of the saloon-keeper's love for her, and, confessing her own love for him, wept, entreated and threatened Minnie in an effort to exact a promise from the young girl to let the man alone.

"Minnie did so, but the saloonist did not give up his attentions until after Minnie joined me and we moved. He did not know our new address.

"I never saw him, but Minnie used to speak with some anxiety about this affair, and did not seem to care to see either the man or the woman again."

Detectives Weller and Grabe thought yesterday that they had some evidence to implicate Miss Kahlert's brother. Julius Kahlert. A Mrs. Gaidel, of 217 Forsyth street, said that Minnie had worked for her in February; that Miss Kahlert used to call, and that one day Minnie came rushing in from the street in grear alarm, saying that she had met Miss Kahlert's brother on the street and that he had threatened and followed her.

The policemen found Julius Kahalert at the German Hospital, on Seventy-seventh street, He is a big man, in bad health, and is both patient and helper ic, he institution. The superintendent said that he had not been out of the house for days.

'One day, not long ago. I went over to call on the ramily of Herrman Mullar, at 185 Danforth street, Greenville, if $2 can be received and the steamer Rhynland, which sails to morrow for Germany. He had about $50 in sherican money, which he carried in his trousers pocket.

Yesterday Lembach imbibed freely, and about $60 can be received about $60 can be respectable people."

It will impossible to induce Miss Tably it on which clear how it happened the $60 can be received about $60 nic he could have an opinion of her criracter.

In C further search through the blood lands of the girls yesterday after-moon, o number of papers, cards and mail articles that had previously escaped notice were found. A man's vality handherchief, with the monogram "L R," was found on the foor. There was blood on the handkerchief. The address. "Frans Regal, care of Mrs. Lober, Hawley, Pa., post box 63," was on a Ulip of paper. A Lilp of paper.

La Cay was the professional card of discountiers Detective-Sergt. Charles Comor. He is on Bowery night duty, and couls not be found this morning.

On a card was written, as though the vent the authorities from collecting girl had contemplated her own destruc-tion: "After suffering. Relieve. Dead.

Amen."
Mrc. Herman was later found at 314
East Twelfth street, where she occupies the second floor of a tenement. There were a lot of women, old and young,
who are represented to be her boarders.
She recalled a girl of Minnie Weldt's description, who was with her a year ago and left owing her 315.

Bhe says the girl had no male acquaintances that she knew of and had never heard of the Hoboken saloonkeeper's story.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Special Agent

Railroad Company, is under arrest here charged with being implicated in the fatal shooting, on an incoming train last night, of George C. Newcomb, Assistant Special Agent of the Western Indiana Railroad Company.

Maxwell, after the shooting, reported that Newcomb had been shot by confidence men; but in an ante-mortem statement Newcomb indicated the existence of a conspiracy between Maxwell, the chief prosecuting agent of the Grand Trunk, and the gang of confidence men which has been operating on the road to rob the passengers and divide the plunder.

Newcomb, who is dying in Mercy Hospital, thinks he was shot because he would not join in the villainous enterprise. James C. Maxwell, of the Grand Trunk

When Bradley asked Tinney to sign the check he said he could not write, so Mr. Bradley had him touch the pen and he signed his name and made his mark. He then gave the men the money, $41.20.

Mr. Bradley deposited the check in the People's Bank, on Canal street, to his account, after which it passed through the regular channels, going to the Clearing House, then to the Treasury. Tuesday Mr. Bradley was notified that the signature of Stephans was a forgery, and he then reported the case to the Leonard street police.

Detective Kehoe arrested Tinney and Taylor on suspicion. When questioned, they said that the check had been given them by James Hahn, of Paterson, N. J., who was up to Thursday last a clerk in the pension office under Col.A. S. Truesdell, who is the newly appointed agent.

Mr. Binsell has had two former experiences with pickpockets, which turned out unfortunately for him, as he was unable to discover the thleves, and consequently lost his property.

During the middle of the parade, when the crowd was the thickest, Mr. Binsell felt a slight movement at his vest pocket. He looked down and saw his valuable gold watch in the hands of McGuire, who was attempting to loosen the watch from the chain. remained of the famous old building was enveloped in flames. In this portion of the hotel was stored much of the furniture which had been saved from the fire on April 14.

Both fires were of mysterious origin. The first broke out at midday in the centre cupola of the hotel, just as a collation was being prepared for the celebration by the New Utrecht Inde-pendent Democrats and Republicans, on account of their victory at the polls over the regular Democratic which had held control of the town for many years. The second fire broke out in the bar-she lived with her aunt, Mrs. Kate Eckermovitch, at 18 Pitt street, who drove her from the house at 3 o'clock this morning for no reison whatever. In the Essex Market Police Court to-day Justice Koch ordered the Children's Society's agents o make an investigation in the case.

The little girl stated in court that her aunt had starved and beaten her, alleging that she didn't work hard enough.
